DIXON QUINTET IN SEMI-FINAL AT STERLING

Trimmed Sterling 3rd Time This Season Last Evening

The Dixon high school basketball team proved a strong contender for the district championship last evening at Sterling in which they defeated Sterling in the last minute of play by a score of 14 to 12. The purple and white played a consistent game, and Sterling was guarding well in an attempt to hold Dixon from a victory. The score was close throughout the game, but Dixon spurred at the close of the contest and won with a field basket. It was the feature game of the day and closed the Friday program.

By defeating Sterling, Dixon goes into the semi-finals and is paired to meet Tampico this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Should Dixon continue its winning streak, the purple and white gasketeers will be on the floor again this evening in the deciding championship game, meeting the winner of the Morrison-Propertown game.

Other Sterling Scores
Propertown eliminated Ohio from the tournament in the opening game yesterday afternoon which was won by a score of 25 to 9. Morrison followed with a victory over Fulton by a 18 to 9 count. Last evening, Lyndon was counted out of the tournament when Tampico administered a 29 to 14 defeat, which preceded the Dixon-Sterling game.

This afternoon Morrison and Propertown are paired for the opening game and will be followed by the Tampico-Dixon combination. This evening, which marks the close of the district tournament, the winners of the two afternoon games will meet as the headline attraction. The opening game this evening will be played between the losing teams of the afternoon session.

The tournament has been a most successful meeting of the high schools of this section of the state and all of the games have been attended by large crowds of enthusiastic student bodies.

220 TEAMS SURVIVE
Chicago, Mar. 9—(AP)—A district championship and the right to enter the sectional tournaments were the aims of 220 high school basketball teams as they entered the semi-final round of the 55 state district tournaments today. The semi-finals were scheduled for this afternoon with the championship game in each tournament booked for tonight.

The 220 prep fires are the survivors of 700 teams that open play Thursday for the Illinois title. Favorites fell along with mediocre and poor teams as the wedding out process continued before gym packed crowds.

Champs Breeze Along
Canton, the defending champion, breezed through its two games with typical Canton low scores but utilizing the style of play that has carried the Peterman-coached teams far in the past.

Kewanee, the medal score five that counted 75 points while holding its opponent to a lone free throw in the opening round, hit a snag in Cambridge and dropped out of running. Marion, Avingdon, Oregon and Monmouth, all picked to go far in their respective tournaments, also fell by the wayside in upset games.

The 55 district champions will enter the eight sectional tournaments next week, the winners of the latter composing the entry list for the championship round at the University of Illinois, March 21-22-23.

Flood Crest to be Passed at Memphis

Memphis, Tenn. March 9—(AP)—The flood crest of the Mississippi river will be passed here within 24 hours, meteorologist F. W. Brist predicted yesterday. He expects a stage of 37 feet, two feet above flood. There were also reports of 100-foot levee break 14 miles northeast of Fayetteville, Ark. and a U. S. inspector with 20,000 sacks of cement was sent there to aid the local levee district. The situation was not thought to be dangerous although much land was reported flooded.

POISON LIQUOR MAY HAVE BEEN STOLEN, THEORY

Big Dealer in Peoria Liquor Says It Was Bought in Cicero

Peoria, Ill., March 9—(AP)—The theory of Chicago federal agents that poison liquor which spread death, and blindness in central Illinois was diverted from Peoria industrial plants was being investigated today.

Peoria firms dealing in industrial alcohol said none of the poisonous liquor had been stolen from their warehouses. Maurice Mansfield, who is charged with being the wholesaler of the death-dealing liquor supply, said he got the shipment in Cicero but his story was openly discredited by investigators.

They announced the belief that either Mansfield was attempting to shield a local industrial plant which had been selling him alcohol or that the liquor had been stolen.

State's Attorney Henry Pratt, who is preparing evidence to place before a grand jury Monday in an attempt to indict ten persons, said he was getting valuable help from small bootleggers in and near Peoria. These small dealers, he said, were anxious to retaliate against Mansfield for entering their field and forcing their prices down.

FARM RELIEF IS FIRST THING ON HOOVER PROGRAM

Measure Will Originate in Senate as House Tackles Tariff

Washington, March 9—(AP)—The legislative program of the coming special congressional session and the question whether farm relief legislation should originate in the House or Senate was placed before President Hoover today by leaders of both branches of Congress.

Chairman McNary of the Senate Agricultural committee, and Chairman Snell of the House Rules committee, called at the White House to ascertain Mr. Hoover's views and it developed that both House and Senate propose to have a farm bill ready for consideration when the special session convenes on April 15.

Chairman Snell said that as drawn up at present the legislative program of the House is first of all farm relief, then the tariff, and later, if a measure is passed by the Senate, congressional reapportionment. He predicted the House would dispose of farm relief within a week.

To Pass Quickly
Chairman McNary said he expected his committee also to have a farm bill drawn up by the beginning of the special session and also predicted, his branch of Congress could dispose of it in a week.

The view of the administration, as unofficially made known, is that the House should devote itself first of all to the tariff, since such legislation must originate there, with the

While machine guns snarled and rifles cracked as Mexican revolutionists and federals fought a bloody battle in the streets of Juarez, U. S. artillery from Fort Bliss, N. Mex., was brought to El Paso, Tex., to protect American life and property. This picture shows Uncle Sam's big guns mounted on two armored cars at the American end of the international bridge, trained on Juarez and ready to repel any crossing of the boundary by fighters on either side. This picture was taken by a cameraman for The Telegraph and NEA service, flown from El Paso to Los Angeles by airplane and speeded thence by telephoto wires.

ASSEMBLY GETS READY TO PROBE PAYROLL PADDING

Echoes of Last Week's Sessions to Resound for Weeks to Come

BY B. P. BOLTON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Springfield, Ill., Mar. 9—(AP)—Echoes of the past week's stormy sessions of the Illinois General Assembly probably will resound in the halls of the two houses for many weeks to come.

Subversion of public morals, corruption in the high places and pay without performance will be the subjects before two committees to be appointed in accordance with the intent of twin resolutions adopted in the two houses.

The house committee, authorized by a resolution proposed by R. J. Eranson of Centralia, will be delving into the doings of legislators when Chicago Sanitary District bills were before the assembly last session. They will try to discover whether these legislators received honorariums from the district; and if they performed any services, other than voting, for the before mentioned measures.

To Delve Into Past
It will be delving, moreover, into the past lives of all members of the house, not to mention the governor, secretary of state, attorney general, Supreme court judges and other state officers. For the Eranson resolution is all-inclusive. It provides for "a committee of seven members to investigate the employment of legislators by local governmental subdivisions, including services rendered and the remuneration received, and particularly to investigate the efficiency of the present laws of Illinois on this subject."

Senators alone, of all state officers, are exempt from the committee's probing; for the senate is the judge of its own membership. Senators have troubles of their own, however. They adopted the Starr resolution which provides for "a committee of five to investigate the charges of mismanagement and expenditure of public funds by the Chicago sanitary district x x x alleged letting of contracts to favored bidders at extravagant prices x x x to repair a law removing jurisdiction of the district from the trustees to a commission appointed by the governor."

May Be Uncovered
It is reasonable to believe that if the committee gets into the mismanagement of public funds, phase of the inquiry, the names of those senators previously published as being on the payroll will be brought to their attention. And if they find these senators received remuneration for services not rendered, something will have to be done about it—if possible.

An amusing commentary on the sanitary district investigation was made during debate by Minority Leader Michael Igoe of Chicago. According to the resolution which the house adopted, sin on the part of legislators was implied by the fact that they were on the payroll at a time when the district's bills were before the assembly. But, Igoe pointed out, 164 members of the lower house alone voted for bills in question; they are approved by Cook county officials, and endorsed by organizations in Cook county which have the reputation of making sincere efforts to

CHARGE VILLAGE BOARD GOBBLED ALL CORPORATION'S BUSINESS EXCLUDING OTHER CITIZENS: OUSTER ASKED

Springfield, Ill., Mar. 9—(AP)—Taxpayers of the village of Crotty, in LaSalle county, selected a fuel dealer, a hardware merchant, a sometime contractor and an amateur lawyer of water pipes for mayor and village commissioners. Therein they erred, appeal briefs filed in the Supreme Court today, contend.

For, these briefs argue, the fuel dealer, the hardware merchant, the sometime contractor and the amateur plumber tried to make a closed corporation of the village. And everybody knows that profits of a closed corporation aren't scattered to the four winds.

M. J. Hogan, the mayor, was the fuel dealer, selling insurance on the side and dabbling in real estate. The briefs relate that he sold the village its official fuel and its official insurance, and rented it a building for its official village hall. This business was condoned by Commissioner E. E. Ellis, because he sold the village its hardware; by Commissioner A. H. Heaton, because he did odd jobs of contracting and hauling for the village; and by Commissioner William Egan because he received certain sums for helping lay water pipes, the briefs declare.

Finally several citizens demanded the corporation be split wide open by ouster of their mayor and commissioners. This demand put in the form of quo warranto petition, was denied by the LaSalle Circuit Court, and appeal was made to the Supreme Court today.

FORMER REBEL LEADER KILLED BY CONSTABLES

Is Executed When He Attempted to Double Cross Militia

Managua, Nicaragua, Mar. 9—(AP)—Native papers today said General Manuel Maria Jiron, former Sandino insurgent leader, who had been in custody of Marines for the last month, had been executed by members of the Nicaraguan volunteer constabulary.

Jiron accompanied a volunteer patrol promising to lead it into a local town where he said the insurgent leader Augustin Sandino could be captured. Instead, members of the patrol found he was leading them into ambush.

The leader of the volunteers placed Jiron under arrest, tried him by court martial and ordered him shot. Marine headquarters here had no information regarding the execution, although all native papers published accounts.

Followed Wolf Two Days: Shot Couple

A. J. Pierson and P. A. Bills of near LaMoille walked into the office of County Clerk Fred G. Dimick yesterday afternoon carrying two large timber wolf pelts, the result of a two day hunt. Both of the animals were killed south and west of Amboy. The pelts were in fine shape and the hunters received the regular bounty of $10 a head for the animals.

The two men discovered the tracks of a wolf Wednesday and started in pursuit. According to their statement they followed the wolf a distance of 56 miles and worked two days before shooting the animal with a rifle in May township. They then picked up another trail south of Amboy township which brought them another fine specimen of timber wolf yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock.

May Be Uncovered
It is reasonable to believe that if the committee gets into the mismanagement of public funds, phase of the inquiry, the names of those senators previously published as being on the payroll will be brought to their attention. And if they find these senators received remuneration for services not rendered, something will have to be done about it—if possible.

LINDBERGH FLIES INAUGURAL MAIL MEXICO TO STATES

A Part of Route Today is Over Scene of Mex. Rebel Activity

Brownsville, Tex., March 9—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed here at 1:34 p. m., today from Mexico City, completing the first official flight on the new air mail route between the Mexican capital and this border city.

Mexico City, March 9—(AP)—The local office of the Western Union was advised that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh left Tampico for Brownsville at 11:05 A. M. (12:05 Eastern Standard time).

The Western Union had been advised only a few minutes previously of the Colonel's arrival at Tampico from Mexico City, indicating that he had remained there only a short time.

WINE AND WOMEN ENTER IN PROBE OF SANITARY DIS.

Chicago, March 9—(AP)—Wine, women and the music of taxi cab meters have been drawn into the investigation of the Chicago Sanitary District payroll scandal with the seizure of records belonging to an auto service company.

Notes and bills taken by State's Attorneys in their raid on the Central Auto Service Company yesterday bore such items as vanity cases, powder, women, whiskey, and ginger ale, indicating, prosecutors said, that certain employees and trustees of the sanitary district made much whoopee, with the public footing the bills.

Investigators, working on their theory that certain sanitary district experts hired expensive autos from the service company, which also supplied the funds for entertainment, later billing the district for the expense amount as auto service, issued a subpoena for S. Saracino, president of the company, to ask him for an explanation.

On Four Day Tour

One bill indicated a four day automobile tour which cost $2,200, and included such items as:

One case of whiskey—$300.
Beer—$150.
Vanity case and powder—$65.
Ginger Ale—$25.
T. J. Crowe—$400.
Five women—$150.

T. J. Crowe was president of the Sanitary District at the time the alleged payroll grafting took place. He is an official of an Oak Park bank which had business dealings with the auto service company in accounting some of its bills against the Sanitary District, investigators said.

Prosecutors now are before a grand jury seeking indictments against certain sanitary district attaches.

Third Plane Followed

A third plane soon followed. This was a five passenger Fairchild piloted by George Kraigher and carried the regular mail for Tampico. Col. Lindbergh came to the field in a scheduled stop at Tampico.

After the battle, the conservative London Times said:

"The English had 149 first-class warships. We now have two, the Warrior and her sister, Ironside. There is not a ship in the navy apart from these two that it would not be madness to trust to an engagement with that little Monitor."

JUAREZ QUIET TODAY

El Paso, Texas, March 9—(AP)—Juarez was quiet today following yesterday's seven hour battle that took its toll of Americans and left the key city of northern Mexico in the hands of revolutionary forces.

Two Americans were killed and another wounded during the fighting.

Lydia Roberta, 2 years old, was fatally wounded by a stray bullet while she was playing in the yard of her home here. Another American, Teddy Barnes, a bartender, was found dead in Juarez after the battle. His body lay beneath slain soldiers near the federal headquarters at the Hotel Rio Bravo. Another El Paso child, 6 years old, struck by a stray bullet, was expected to recover.

Official casualty lists of the battle were not available but it was estimated that thirteen federal soldiers and rebels were killed and more than a score on each side wounded.

Interred in U. S. Fort

On this side of the border, 310 Mexican federal troops and their families were interned at Fort Bliss under the terms of a truce which ended the battle. The truce was included at a conference on the international bridge between General Matias Ramos, commander of federal troops; General Miguel Valles, rebel leader, and Brig. Gen. Van Horn Mosely, commander of American forces here, after stray bullets had killed the child and endangered the lives of other Americans in El Paso.

General Mosely, backed by civil authorities of El Paso, told the Mexican generals that the fighting had to stop. They agreed to cease hostilities after Colonel Kenyon A. Joyce, United States Army officer, told General Ramos that his troops could withdraw into the United

INSURGENTS IN SOUTH OF MEXICO LOSE

Jaurez Quiet Today as Big Federal Force Moves North.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Former President Calles himself took the field against the rebels today at the head of one of the largest armies collected in Mexico since the Pancho Villa rebellion in 1915.

Definitely crushing the insurgent movement in the south the government was putting its full strength in the field toward the north and a possibly decisive battle was expected in the region of Torreon.

Federal forces estimated at 18,000 were concentrating at Irapuato ready to move on Cuernavaca, Zacatecas, where several thousand insurgents were gathered. To the north, at Torreon, was General Escobar, Commander-in-Chief of the rebels.

General Almazan, loyal federal commander, reached Saltillo and has asked for artillery, presumably to bombard Torreon if necessary.

To Drive on Capital
While the federals were pouring northward, the revolutionists announced that a drive on Mexico City would be made immediately. General Montero, insurgent representative in New York, declared that two main bodies of insurgents numbering 30,000 were moving southward.

Juarez was quiet today after its capture by the insurgents, but new fighting along the American border was expected at Nogales, Sonora.

Federal authorities in Baja California, were believed preparing an aerial bombardment of the revolutionary stronghold.

Fighting also appeared imminent at Mazatlan, Sinaloa, where 2,500 federals are fortified against an advancing rebel army.

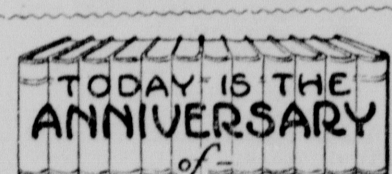

Two Americans Dead
Two Americans were killed in yesterday's battle at Juarez, one a two year old girl in El Paso and the second a man found dead in Juarez.

Fighting between the opposing forces ended late yesterday when American authorities interposed because of the danger to Americans in El Paso.

About 300 federals and their families were interned at Fort Bliss under the terms of the truce.

The State Department at Washington has approved a request of the Mexican Government for surplus war material and will probably supply such material out of stores now held by the War Department.

The American government also approved a request by the Mexican government to import privately-built airplanes from the United States. Along with this went an embargo on unauthorized shipments of planes into Mexico.

Butter Market

Chicago, March 9—(AP)—Butter markets are closing the week nervous and unsettled. Trade opinions was to the future show such wide variance that it is difficult to arrive at any definite judgment concerning the probable trend.

Receivers quite generally report a slight increase of arrivals from individual factories. There is also an increase of receipts at the four principal markets, although some of the increase at Boston and New York is attributed to shipments from Chicago.

Prices on medium and lower grades of butter, though, do not share the easiness and decline of the top scores. Arrivals of medium and lower grades have been quite closely cleared on all markets, and considerable storage of mediocre quality is being placed in consumer channels.

Weekly Grain

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Financial Editor
Chicago, March 9—(AP)—With the biggest stock of grain in Chicago that has been witnessed for many years, friends of higher prices are just now somewhat severely handicapped. Moreover, predictions are current that the United States will go into the new crop year July 1 with the largest carry-over of wheat ever known.

To a notable extent reflecting these conditions, wheat this morning was 3c to 3 1/2c a bushel lower, compared with a week ago. Simultaneously, corn was 1/2c to 1 1/2c down, and oats 1/4c to 2 1/2c off, with provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 65c.

Confronted by a decided bearish showing of reserve stocks of wheat on United States farms, as well as by heavy supplies of wheat on hand at all domestic commercial centers, wheat prices have dropped to the lowest level in several weeks. However, some leading trade authorities here are quoted today to the effect that with about five months still to go the outlook is for wheat purchases by import countries reaching an amount beyond any previous record. In this connection, it is pointed out as especially significant that non-European countries this season are taking breadstuffs on a scale heretofore never equaled, and thus relieving Europe of a strain which might otherwise develop from pressure of surplus supplies. It is suggested that this possibly will mean that the United States is to have a spring and summer export breadstuff trade of at least fairly normal size.

Meanwhile, during the next few weeks the interest of wheat operators is expected to focus largely on crop conditions. According to foremost Chicago experts, domestic winter wheat does not at present appear to have suffered any great damage, and it will be impossible tell definitely for a while yet what if any unusual harm has been done. About 50 per cent of the total winter wheat acreage of the country is in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, and so far reports indicate relatively little loss in those three states. On the other hand, the spring wheat situation both in the United States and Canada is becoming more serious, official returns showing a heavy deficit of moisture, approximately 28 shortage compared to normal.

Corn is in comparatively a firmer price position than wheat, crop values being low based on the value of hogs. Besides, so far this year more cattle have been sent into feed lots in the corn belt states than was the case last year. The oats market is showing the effect of liquidating sales on the part of holders finally tired out as a result of large supplies.

Provisions have averaged higher, paralleling the action of hog values.

Wall Street

BY STANLEY W. PRENSHIL
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York, March 9—(AP)—A complete reversal of price movement took place in today's stock market, prices rallying briskly at the opening and then turning reactionary under heavy week-end profit taking and bear selling. Trading was moderately heavy in volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,800,000 shares.

Despite the high money rates and repeated warnings against securities inflation, pools were aggressively at work in a fairly large assortment of specialties. Radio issue were again the feature, the old stock soaring 19 points to a new high record at 464, or 96 point above Wednesday's low, and the new moving up to a new high record at 93 1/2. Both fell back sharply from the highs on the reiteration by President Harding of the Radio Corporation that no merger negotiations with the Western Union Company were under way or contemplated.

The break in the Radio issues unsettled the general list, with selling pressure most effective against the copper, steel and merchandising issues. Many of the early gains were wiped out, and a fairly representative list of stocks including U. S. Steel common, Anaconda, American Can, International Harvester and New York Central sold 1 to 3 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Establishment of a new low record for the year by the Canadian dollar revived hopes of further gold imports from that country but this was offset by the possibility of a further increase in the Bank of England discount rate because the recent decline in sterling threatened a further drain on Great Britain's limited gold supply.

Sheriff Morgan arrived last night and talked with Young, who still maintained that he did not steal the car, but was driving it through to Chicago after it had been turned over to him by a stranger. Young faces prosecution in a federal court for the driving of a stolen automobile from one state into another, a violation of the Dyer act. Joe Zewe of Peoria, who was a passenger in the car when it was halted by State Police Roberts and Church Thursday afternoon, returned to his home last night, a brother having come to Dixon to take him back.

ferret out every unmeritorious measure, and every bill with a "joker" in it. So, by linking the payroll with the sanitary district bills, the Branson resolution indirectly implicates 104 members of the legislature, including Branson himself, as well as a host of others.

The task of appointing these committees rests with Speaker David Shanahan in the house, and the senate executive committee.

Al Became Charged
The sanitary district resolutions were not alone in inspiring charges of corruption. A day before the Branson debate, the air was heavy with hotly spoken words in regard to the management—or mismanagement—of the state charitable institutions.

An outgrowth of that debate which was otherwise unproductive—is a bill now under consideration by the house committee on appropriations which would contribute $400,000 for buildings to relieve overcrowded conditions at the state hospitals.

This bill was offered by Rep. Joseph Rategan, Democrat of Chicago as a substitute for his resolution for an investigating committee, which was voted down.

When the appropriation committee takes up the bill—Rategan pushes it—the stories of inmates on insane asylums sleeping on hard tile and on stacks of hay will probably be repeated.

Rategan's measure is regarded, however, as an attempt to do something which the new administration plans to do. Director Rodney Branson has already announced plans to spend several million dollars for just such relief; and Republicans think the Democrats are seeking to gain whatever glory may be added to adding comfort to the lives of the state's unfortunates.

THE FEBRUARY THURSH

I know him, February's thrush.
And loud at eve he valentines
On sprays that paw the naked bush.

Where soon will sprout the thorns and vines.

Now ere the foreign singer thrills
Our vale his plain-song pipe he pours,
A herald of the million bills;
And heed him not, the loss is yours.

My study, flanked with ivied fir
And budded beech and dry leaves curled,
Perched over yew and juniper,
He neighbours, piping to his world:—

The wooded pathways dank on brown,
The branches on grey clouds a web,
The long green rolls, of the down,
An image of the deluge-ebb:—

And farther, they may hear along
The stream beneath the poplar rows,
By fits, like welling rocks, the song
Spouts of a blushing Spring in flow.

—From "Poems," by George Meredith.

Entertained for Bride-to-be Last Evening

Last evening Mrs. Sumner Wilson charmingly entertained twelve guests at her home honoring a bride-to-be, Miss Nellie Culver, who is soon to wed Harold Horton of this city. The affair was a surprise to Miss Culver and proved a genuine astonisher as well as a most enjoyable event. Games and music were the amusements for the evening. The home was beautifully decorated in spring flowers, tulips and freesia in lavender and pink, while the St. Patrick's day motif in green was a color note emphasized.

A treasure hunt was one of the amusements and Miss Culver "found" the treasure box which had been beautifully decorated in green and white and which indeed contained many treasures, the gifts in the shower held for her by those present. She received a miscellaneous assortment of handsome presents with best wishes for future happiness for the young couple. A tempting luncheon was served during the evening.

A mock wedding was held with Lola Rubright as the bride, Helen Donald as the bridegroom and Florence Emmole as the minister, and the entertainment afforded by these merry makers will not soon be forgotten.

At the close of the happy evening the guests sought their homes at a late hour, expressing pleasure to their hosts for a delightful evening and wishing Miss Culver in advance, much happiness in her married life.

London Sweethearts Emulate Ground Mole

London—(AP)—Cupid has found a snug winter cave in which to shelter young London lovers.

The new underground subways beneath Piccadilly Circus is rivaling Hyde Park in summer, as a trying place.

Beneath the old haunt of Eros, young men and women meet nightly. The lights are bright, it is true, but the show is fascinating and free. Linked arm in arm, they perambulate the circle of illuminated showcases and "window-shop" for the future. The moving staircases are as thrilling as a scenic railway, and no one asks for a ticket or puts the lovers off when the ride is over. They may go blissfully on for ever.

Two policemen from Vine street are on night duty in Cupid's cave, but the shy little god of love has seduced them wisely. They are as indifferent as a discreet London "bobby" can be.

Y. W. M. S. TO MEET TUESDAY EVENING

The Young Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Lutheran church will meet at the parsonage of the church Tuesday evening at 7:30. The leaders are Mrs. William Wisco and Mrs. Helen Stanly and Miss Mable Stanly. All young women of the church are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Fish for Lenten Menu: Tasty Ways of Preparing Them

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

During the Lenten season many housewives are serving fish regularly once or twice a week, but every woman would do well to do this throughout the year, for fish is a delicious and nutritious meat equivalent.

Fish "sea-food" is one of our most extensive natural sources of food. This includes shell fish as well as just "fish" and the abundance is so varied that meals need never become monotonous.

Like meat, all varieties of fish are rich in protein and contain variable amounts of vitamins A and B, essential to human growth and health. Sea fish contains iodine in variable amounts. Iodine is recognized as a regulator of thyroid activities and thus a preventative of goiter.

Sauce Is Important

Fish is an excellent food for children and one which can easily be served at the family table, for if adults must have a highly seasoned dish this can be supplied by the sauce which should be served separately without detriment to the perfectly and simply cooked fish.

One tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 cup milk, 1 cup sifted tomatoes, 4 eggs, 1-4 cup chopped cooked ham, 2 tablespoons tomato catsup, salt and pepper.

Melt butter and stir in flour. Cook until bubbling and stir in tomatoes. Bring to the boiling point and add eggs without beating. Add milk and 1-4 cup with a fork while cooking. When eggs are set add catsup, ham and seasoning. Make very hot and serve at once.

Interesting Meeting At Christian Church

The "Open Meeting" or "Family Night" participated in by all Missionary organizations of the Christian church Thursday evening, proved a wonderful success. A splendid program followed the picnic supper. There was but a short business session in which Mrs. J. P. Kindig, the president urged the societies to remember the Easter week of prayer.

Miss Gladys Cunningham as Worship leader read from the Book, Luke 10:29-37, the lesson of "Living and Loving." Mrs. Nate Morrill presided at the organ during the hymns and special numbers.

Mrs. A. L. Palmer as Presentation leader, called on Mr. James Leach for a talk on the work in India being transferred from its present location to a new area, feeling that this new center for future work is but a forward step in the work of saving India.

Miss Ora Floto, Mesdames Emmert, Palmer and Der sang a beautiful quartet number regarding the Missionary magazine, World Call, and Mrs. Reagan dressed as World Call presenting facts concerning it in a monologue, "I Am World Call." Mrs. A. S. Der presented the map drill in a very unique way, dressed in the costume of an India woman, calling on several members for remarks concerning the work and Miss Dorothy Bridges, also in costume, presented in pantomime the song, India Sad India, sung by Mrs. Reagan.

Rev. Cleaver closed the meeting with prayer.

Is the Prince Now Ready to Marry?

London, Mar. 9.—(AP)—The perennial question of when the Prince of Wales will marry receives a fresh airing in the Daily Sketch today.

The paper recalls that the Prince has told friends he will marry when he is 35 and his thirty-fifth birthday is June 28. The court gossip is now indulging in some speculation.

The point to the fact, the paper says, that Marlborough House, which for some time has been prepared for the Prince's residence, is not a bachelor home, that it is now ready for occupation, and that the "consort's suite" in it has been refitted and redecorated.

Entertained for Miss Enid Segner's Birthday

This club composed of eight girls is still looking for a name. A birthday supper with a most appetizing menu was enjoyed by the group. Afterwards an evening at bridge occupied the attention of all. Miss Billie Scott was awarded the favor for high honors and Miss Lois Mellott was awarded the second favor. Miss Segner received a number of lovely birthday gifts from her friends with their best wishes for a happy year.

The WOMAN'S DAY

BY ALLENE JUDGE

The Anti-Cigarette Alliance of Ohio has introduced a bill into the state legislature which would prohibit smoking by all public school teachers. It is not plain whether the bill designates this complete abstinence during school hours, or at any time.

The representative introducing the bill isn't especially rabid on the subject. He mildly remarks that he "doesn't believe that teachers who use cigarettes set a good example to children." He denies, too, that the bill is especially aimed at women teachers; all in all his rather anemic manner merely leads one to wonder what he wants to do the lady anti-cigarette-alliance leader who suggested the bill a good turn, and really hasn't his heart in his work at all.

WHOSE JOB?

But whatever the whyfore, how about it? Granted that cigarettes do no one any real good, even if no actual harm, and it may be dangerous to grant either half of that, to what extent does a state have any right to demand of its teachers personal sacrifices which it would not demand by law from parents?

After all a parent should be more concerned about the horrible examples which it sets its own children than any hired leader of youth. We are inclined as a nation, to assume the attitude that because we pay taxes, we are automatically relieved from all obligations, even to our own children, assuming that some "paid party" do "the dirty work."

I can only remark that I heartily favor a law forbidding any school teacher to smoke, as soon as there is a similar law forbidding any parent to smoke.

OUT OF DATE

A 14-year-old girl is lying in a state of coma down in Lancaster, O., because they say, of excessive and abnormal emotion induced by a series of revival meetings in the town.

Three other girls are said to be somewhat similarly affected.

It may sound a bit strong, but in less than a hundred years our high-powered revival meetings, which long ago were regarded as somewhat of a throwback to the old customs of throwing Christians to the lions or some outlandish Hottentot emotion-crazed mad dance.

WELL, WELL!

Clarence Barrett, 40, of St. Louis, tried this one. His two "wives" lived under the same roof. Each one believed that the other was his half-sister. That went on for several years. And yet they say that women "tell everything they know!"

The usual result when the denouement came was no feeling of hatred and vengeance on either woman's part for the man, but those emotions directed towards the other woman.

Sometimes women ask "how men get away with the things they do." The answer is "because of woman's easiness."

SHELL SHOW TEACHER

Evelyn Jackson, 12-year-old school girl of Reedsburg, Wis., is suing her school teacher for $20,000 for personal damages. It was the girl's duty to teach the school flag in the school yard. She did not do it one night, claiming that deep snow and ice made it impossible. Her teacher caused her to wear a sign around her neck which read, "I Am Not a Good Citizen." So the teacher is sued.

FOUR "TEACHER"

And it's just as probable that if she hadn't taken some steps about the flag incident she'd have been impeached herself as "a school teacher without proper civic ideas," and "a menace to our children."

Sometimes one wonders, easy as it occasionally looks on the surface of short hours and frequent holidays, if any professional woman is so brave as to wear the dark blue sea as a school teacher.

PRACTICAL CLUE TO MEET TUESDAY

The Practical Club will meet with Mrs. J. N. Weiss, 1211 Third street, Tuesday afternoon, March 12. Mrs. H. A. Ahrens will give a "Book Review."

Mrs. Wilbur and Mrs. Hoover Friends

Washington, March 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the new Secretary of the Interior, probably will be Mrs. Herbert Hoover's closest friend in the capital.

Their association began when they were coeds together in Leland Stanford University, and Mrs. Wilbur feels her chief joy in coming to Washington is the renewal of this friendship of many years' standing. It has never been disrupted; but the span of a continent has separated them from each other during more than a decade, except for infrequent visits.

A misfortune of Mrs. Wilbur's however, will bring them closer together than they would be otherwise in the swirl of official social life. Ill health, which she has suffered since she fell from a horse and broke two vertebrae of her neck seven years ago, probably will keep Mrs. Wilbur from most of her social duties, but it is expected to make more intimate the First Lady's attentions to her friend.

Because of these circumstances, Mrs. Wilbur said today, she looks on the four year period with zest. She will remain, at least for a time, in the hotel suite to which she came last week-end; and she will attempt to participate in some of the official ceremonies, although it will be impossible for her to be as active as will be most of the other cabinet ladies.

A. L. Dogwiler Was Happily Surprised

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Alois Dogwiler of First avenue was the setting for a pleasant surprise planned and carried to a happy consummation by the lady of the house in honor of the birthday anniversary of her husband on Thursday evening. There were guests for three tables of five hundred and as soon as Mr. Dogwiler had recovered from his astonishment all proceeded to enjoy the evening in this pastime. Miss Eva Peterson was awarded the favor for high score for the ladies; Mrs. Clyde Lambert was awarded the consolation favor for the ladies. Elmer Peterson won the high score favor for the gentlemen and Ben Dogwiler received the consolation favor for the gentlemen.

A delicious birthday luncheon was served, the table being beautifully decorated in green and white honoring St. Patrick's day. A lovely white cake with green candles in green rose holders, graced the center of the table, and the favors were in the St. Patrick day spirit. Gracing the table also were tall green tapers in green crystal holders. At the close of the delightful evening all the guests wished Mr. Dogwiler who was genuinely surprised, happy returns of the day, and also left him many hand-some gifts with best wishes of the donors.

Goke received the favor for second honors.

Happy Meeting of Prairieville P. T. A.

Prairieville P. T. A. met in its regular March meeting Thursday evening, March 7. The attendance was smaller than usual.

The annual election was held and the present officers were all re-elected.

The treasurer reported net proceeds of $29.20 from the recent bake sale held by the P. T. A.

The program opened with community singing of P. T. A. songs, led by the teacher, Mrs. Edna Pine. The address of the evening was by Dr. George Conn, who is in charge of the Veterinary Department of the W. T. Raleigh Co. at Freeport, Ill. He has occupied several positions in his line of work and is a prominent contributor to farm publications. He was introduced by Mr. Brian, a representative of the Raleigh Co.

Dr. Conn told about the well known herds of pure bred stock on the Raleigh farms of 1000 acres, speaking particularly of the dairy herd. The average production of 32 cows last year was over 13,000 lbs. of milk and 473 lbs. of butter fat. This is more than three times the average production for the U. S. A. cow must produce at least 6,500 lbs. of milk to pay for her keep, said Dr. Conn. He spoke at length of the importance of improving and grading the dairy herd to make it profitable to the owner.

At the close of the talk the hospitality committee served refreshments. The next meeting will be held April 4 when a miscellaneous program will be given.

Series Delightful Parties Ends Today

A series of most delightful parties, which started last Saturday and continued throughout the week, drew to a close today. The hostesses for the charming affairs which were held at the Hamilton home, were Mrs. F. L. Hamilton and Mrs. J. B. Hofer. Lovely spring flowers, with sweet peas and ferns predominating, were employed in the attractive decorations. Green and white, St. Patrick's day hues, and motifs, and favors were unusually pretty and appropriate. The menu served at the appetizing luncheons and dinners, also emphasized the note of green, as did the exceptionally pretty china used.

The first party on Saturday, was a charming affair and Miss Josephine Nichols won the favor for high honors; Miss Grace Crawford won the second favor and Miss Marion Ahrens the consolation favor.

On Wednesday another bridge luncheon proved a most enjoyable affair and at this party Mrs. C. H. Bokhof was awarded the favor for high honors; Mrs. H. U. Bardwell was awarded the second favor and Mrs. C. H. Ives the consolation favor. The bridge dinner Thursday evening was equally delightful and Mrs. J. N. Wilkinson captured the favor for high honors; Mrs. Richard Bovey the second favor, and Mrs. Edgar Crawford the consolation favor.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY SPRING MEETING IS HELD

Dixon Members Attend Meeting in Sterling Thursday

The regular spring meeting of the Rock River Horticultural Society was held in the parlors of the Congregational church at Sterling, Thursday. After a sumptuous dinner served by the lady members of the society, who are so efficient in the culinary art they cannot be surpassed, the meeting was called to order by the president Frank Sills at 2 o'clock. America was sung, Mrs. Lee Lambert presiding at the piano. The minutes of the October meeting and the treasurer's report were read by the Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. S. S. Royer, and both were approved.

The secretary read communications and reported sending a spray of flowers in honor of Jessie Powell, a former member, also reading a card of thanks. A discussion followed which resulted in the collection of a flower fund, and it was voted to make this collection at each meeting of the society. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ecklund for the beautiful bouquet of roses which had been presented for this meeting. The names of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Meppin, Mr. and Mrs. John I. Schafer of Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Scott of Rock Falls were presented as prospective members and were elected to membership.

Mrs. Charles Hey of Dixon then gave an extemporaneous report of the Mt. Morris meeting in December which she attended as a delegate of the society. She spoke particularly of the beautiful display of fruit, especially of the apple exhibit and called attention to the fine entertainment which was provided for the delegates.

L. E. Wise of Morrison, whose name is associated with the dairy judging team which won the European trip several years ago, was introduced by the president. He spoke of the joy his grandmother received from the sprays of flowers which he gave her and urged the strewing of roses for the living as the dead cannot appreciate them.

In his address, he advised the younger farmers to plant orchards instead of raising a surplus of grains. Land worth $50 to $60 per acre, if set to fruit trees will soon yield a nice income the speaker said, amounting to $400 to $500 an acre. He urged the importance of tree spraying, which he said would increase the yield 80 to 90 per cent of perfect fruit; whereas by omitting the spraying, no perfect fruit to amount to anything is received. To his question, "What is worse than an apple with a worm in it?" the reply was, "An apple with half a worm in it." Mr. Wise called attention to two brothers near Morrison in the Cottonwood community who have recently set out an orchard of 20 acres and will soon be harvesting their profits.

Charles Hey of Dixon advised members of the society to try and raise peaches. While he expressed doubt as to a crop every year, he expressed a belief that the grower would realize sufficient profit from the experiment to pay him for his time and care.

The secretary, Mrs. Royer, favored with a reading, "An order for a picture" at the conclusion of a most delightful afternoon's program. The guest speaker, Mr. Wise of Morrison expressed a desire to become a member of the society and the president proposing the names of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Wise, they were voted memberships, as were Rev. and Mrs. Nelson, after the pastor had addressed the assemblage and invited them to return again. A vote of thanks was extended to the officers and members of the Congregational church for the use of the parlors for the meeting.

THESE REMARKS NOT UNCALLED FOR

A spinster living in a London suburb was checked at the language used by two men repairing telegraph wires close to her house.

She wrote to the company on the matter, and the foreman was asked to report.

"Me and Bill Fairweather were on this job," he said. "I was up the telegraph pole, and accidentally let the hot lead fall on Bill. It went down his neck. Then he said: 'You really must be more careful, Harry.'"

BRITAIN'S DEPRESSION.

There are now upwards of 1,400,000 men out of work in England—more than at any time since the general strike of 1926.

Instead of improving, the situation continues to get worse. It is doubtful if any government in Europe faces a problem as acute as England's problem of unemployment and industrial depression.

In spite of this, however, a great deal of the sorrowful sympathy one hears for the "poor old British" nowadays is misplaced.

During the last couple of years there has grown up in this country a new attitude toward England; a feeling that the British lion has been his best day and is now well started on a decline that eventually bring him down from his high place. "England will never recover," we hear; markets are being lost to the United States and Germany, British coal is no longer in such great demand, British business cannot adapt itself to modern conditions—and so on.

The unemployment situation, coupled with the industrial depression, does seem to support this theory. It is more than ten years since the war ended. Surely, any ordinary "post war slump" should have ended by this time.

Yet, before the wreaths are brought out for the dying lion, it might be well to consider one or two facts.

In the first place, England has gone through precisely the same sort of thing before and survived it beautifully.

Following the Napoleonic wars, England sank into a pit of depression that seemed bottomless. The nation had fought the French for years, at a terrible expense. It had won, just as it won over Germany; but the effort left it little better off than its beaten foe. During the period just after 1815 there were excellent grounds for suspecting that England would never regain her former place.

But England did. The new machine civilization dawned, and the English found that they could recover all that they had lost by developing factories, steamships and mines. In a couple of decades prosperity had returned on a larger scale than ever before.

There is a parallel there for today. England's coal mines helped her recover from the Napoleonic wars; the same mines, bankrupt as they are, may yet help her recover from the war with Germany.

To be sure, coal now is a drug on the market. But the chemists are busy. They are predicting new uses for coal; processing plants at the pit heads, which will make power available on a much cheaper scale, turn every coal mine into a Niagara of energy and give all industry that can tap such sources a tremendous push forward.

England's salvation may lie there. If this new method of getting power is ever developed—as it undoubtedly will be, sooner or later—the words "unemployment" and industrial depression" would slip, magically, out of England's vocabulary.

Don't shed too many tears over the decline of the British empire. The patient is a long, long way from being dead.

JAZZ IN JERUSALEM.

Nothing so illustrates the spread of American influence and American ways all over the world as the way in which our popular music is played in distant lands.

Rudolph Friml, composer of such musical hits as "Rose Marie" and "The Vagabond King," recently made a round-the-world cruise. While visiting Palestine, he found a band in Jerusalem playing the famous "Song of the Vagabonds" from the latter show. Introducing himself to the leader, he took the baton and himself conducted the band in an encore rendition of the tune.

Nothing could be much more striking than that. A rousing Broadway song in the holy city of Palestine! Our music, at any rate, is going all over the world.

Citizen Coolidge is to write magazine articles, in which he is expected to explain some of the health problems of a president. Are we going to find out what kind of cigars kept him so robust?

A prominent doctor told an audience in Boston the other day that laughter not only is exercise, but aids digestion. That's why so few Washington correspondents have stomach trouble.

Two western Kansas wheat farmers have bought airplanes to commute between their farms and the Colorado trout brooks. Congressmen who have been pressing for farm relief probably would tell you they have to catch fish to keep from starving to death.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

As Clowny stood before the cave, the Tinymites began to rave. "Don't go in there," said Scouty. "How do you know what's inside? Take my advice and have a care. A lot of bears may live in there. That likely is a fine dark place for animals to hide."

Then Coppy added, "No, sweet! It doesn't look so safe to me. Let's run along and just forget about this pitch dark door. I'm really scared. I must confess, 'cause we might get into a mess. There is no need in going in. What should we do it for?"

"Was Carpy's turn to have his say. Said he, 'I'd rather run and play right out here in the open. Then I know that I'm all right. We don't know where that cave leads to, and as for me, it will not do to take a chance at entering. Why, it's as dark as night.'"

"Ha, ha," laughed Clowny. "You're all scared. You wouldn't go if you were dared. But I am brave and very bold. There is no fright in me. This monstrous cave-way shall be tried and all of you can wait outside. When I come back I'll tell you all about the things I see."

So, while the others stood around, we Clowny, with a sudden bound, went running through the black space and was soon far out of sight. "Oh, my," said Scouty, "I'll just bet that while we wait we'll sit and fret. I surely hope that Clowny finds the cave is quite all right."

Just then there came a rumbling sound and rock began to fall around. Each Tiny jumped back just in time to save his little hide. One great big rock fell with a roar, and landed by the black cave door. The entrance now was blocked and little Clowny was inside.

(The Tinymites try to free Clowny in the next story.)

What Twin Ignition Does

THE New Nash Twin-Ignition motor has two big aircraft spark plugs for each cylinder, instead of the ordinary single plug, as you can see in the simplified diagram above.

Both plugs fire simultaneously. The gas vapor is ignited at two points instead of the usual one. One effect is quicker combustion, which produces more power, more speed, much faster acceleration.

Another result is, more uniform combustion, which helps to create the very noticeable smoothness and rhythm of Nash motor performance.

And still another result of Twin Ignition is more efficient combustion, which prevents wasted fuel.

With Twin Ignition, instead of single ignition, higher compression is practical, and the same Nash motor produces 9½ more horsepower, 5 miles an hour more speed, and 2 extra miles from every gallon of gasoline you buy.

Helpful Club Meeting

The Woman's Club met Monday afternoon with the president, Mrs. T. W. Brown. Roll call. "Blossoms the Year Round", brought out a delightful variety of nature verses expressing the individuality of each contributor. Following the routine of business the program was presented by Miss Maude Conlon, chairman of the department of American Homes. It is not often that Miss Conlon can be present at the club meetings, though she is an interested and efficient member of the program committee, and her presence was thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed.

An article, "Flowers at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933," read by Mrs. Ada Peterman, described some of the plans for planting and beautifying of the world's fair grounds, which are already being started. Gardens, terraces, pools of wondrous variety and beauty, with flowers and plants from all over the world, with garden architecture and landscaping of most elaborate beauty, will surely make the World's Fair of 1933 a veritable paradise from the viewpoint of the gardener. That well-known loved poem, "Trees," by Joyce Kilmer, was read by Mrs. Durkes, together with a short sketch of the author.

Miss Conlon then presented a guest from Dochele Woman's Club, Mrs. Robert Brundage, who gave a most delightful talk on "Gardens." Mrs. Brundage is a real gardener, who works her own garden, comes into intimate communion with Mother Earth and gets infinite inspiration from her. The first part of her talk was of general nature, presenting her subject as a whole. Later on, she took up the details of successful and satisfying flower gardens and garden pictures. A general and animated discussion followed and Mrs. Brundage gave so many helpful facts gained by her own experience, that it seemed as if everyone present must receive much that will be of benefit to her own individual garden. The plant and scene exchange was carried out as planned, with mutual benefit to all. There was no time to take up any detailed plan for organizing our own Garden Club, but after hearing Mrs. Brundage's talk the interest seemed even greater than before, so it was planned to have a special meeting of the Woman's Club next Monday at the home of Mrs. Hannah Conlon, for the purpose of organizing a Garden Club and to transact other business which has been postponed. Bring your suggestions for the activities of a garden club at this time, that they may be discussed.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Durkes. A most delightful afternoon came to a close and all expressed the wish that we might have Mrs. Brundage meet with us again "in harden time."

Seven Years in the White House

Seven years in the White House have wrought little change in Calvin Coolidge. Here is pictorial evidence that the arduous life that has prematurely aged many chief executives of the past has had small effect on the rugged man from Vermont. For the portrait at the left was made in 1923, when the death of Warren Harding brought Mr. Coolidge to the presidency. The portrait at the right is his most recent one, and it is hard to differentiate between them. You'll note that his hair is a little thinner and grayer now. Too, his face now is more deeply lined, his mouth may be a bit more firm, but his eyes seem to have gained a quizzical twinkle. And Mr. Coolidge actually is leaving the White House ten pounds heavier than when he entered it!

Special Meeting

Remember the special meeting of the Woman's Club to be held at the home of Mrs. Hannah Conlon, Monday March 11, at 2:15 P. M. Every member is urged to be present as business of importance is to be transacted concerning the Garden Club. Come with some thought that will be of help along that line.

HOOPER ANNOUNCES DEFINITE PLAN TO STUDY CONDITIONS

Commission to Study the Entire Machinery of Justice

Washington, Mar. 9.—(AP)—President Hoover came today to the end of his first working week as the nation's Chief Executive with definite plans in mind for a far reaching investigation to be made by a law enforcement commission. In addition, despite the distractions presented in the foreign field by the possibilities of international implications stirred up by a full fledged Mexican revolt, the President had given thought to immigration and the problems of federal employees and had seen dozens of callers on other questions of domestic concern.

The full scope of the investigation law enforcement contemplated as disclosed yesterday when in reply to questions of press correspondents the President said "It is intended to cover the entire question of law enforcement and organization of justice."

To Include Justice Machine

"It will also naturally include consideration of the method of enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and abuses which have grown up together with the enforcement of laws in respect to narcotics, to immigration, to trade restraint and very other branch of federal government law enforcement," he said. "The first step in law enforcement," he added, "is adequate organization of our judicial and enforcement system."

The Mexican situation occupied the attention of the Cabinet yesterday while stray bullets were whistling across the border at El Paso. After meeting it became known that the southern republic had been negotiating with the United States for surplus war materials and would be supplied with such as might be needed.

At the same time it was made clear that there was no difference of opinion between the War Department and the State Department over the steps that should be taken to protect the American borders. It was considered unnecessary at this time to send additional troops to the border.

To Keep Honest Workers

Questions concerning changes to be made in government personnel, the President said comparatively few were contemplated. He added that he proposed to retain as many as possible of those "who have given honest and zealous service."

"It is traditional for the principal recting heads of the government whose appointments are at the pleasure of the President both at home and in the foreign service to tender their resignations with the advent of a new President," he said. Out of several hundred such officials, there are probably not more than 20 or 30 changes likely to be made at the present time."

The problem presented by the status of the national origins provisions of the immigration laws has been referred to the Attorney General for an opinion. Unless the floor finds otherwise, it will be necessary for the President to issue proclamation on April 1 to put them into effect on July 1.

MY THIRTY YEARS AT SEA

By Capt. George Fried

A captain's life is not wholly one of glamor and adventure. Coupled with his responsibility for safety and care of crew and passengers are the scores of petty questions and traveling problems that come to him for decision. Some of Fried's troubles and their attendant serious and humorous sideglances are told in this chapter.

BY CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
(Copyright 1929, Associated Press)
CHAPTER XII

Supervising the operation of the vessel is not always the master's greatest difficulties. There are times when he might wish he were a sort of walking encyclopedia. He must answer questions concerning the ship, storms, water and hundreds of other subjects pertaining to the sea and should always be ready to tell stories, especially in the dining saloon.

Catering to the traveling public and protecting it also are the tasks of the captain. On the North Atlantic the professional gambler hunts his prey, especially at the height of the tourist season. Warnings are posted in conspicuous places against the professional gambler, but sometimes the unwary tourist, wishing to pass the time away innocently in a small game, gets in the web. The gambler always starts in a small way and only begins to win when the stakes get large. Many of these card sharks are known to the officers of the ship but now and then a new one comes along. I recall meeting a couple on the deck one day, an attractively dressed pair, who greeted me effusively. During the conversation the woman referred to her 14 pieces of baggage. This struck me as rather strange. I inquired and found there was no baggage in the hold belonging to that couple. I was suspicious. Later I saw them playing cards.

They were winning. I warned them they would be victim, but he did not take me seriously. He fully appreciated the situation the next day when he won and they refused to give him cash, insisting that he accept a check. The gamblers had allowed him to win to vary the monotony. The matter was brought to my attention and the cash was turned over at my request. No further games were held in which the pair participated for the remainder of the voyage. The victim of a swindle of this type sometimes takes his medicine rather than let anyone know that he has been "taken over," thereby hurting his reputation.

The ship's pool satisfies the average traveler who wishes to gamble. The pool is made up by passengers who pay from one to several dollars for a ticket. Each ticket is numbered. Sometimes it is auctioned off to the highest bidder.

When the ship's run is posted the ticket bearing the number comparing with the last numeral of the mileage is the winner.

Settling disputes also go to the captain. One that caused me considerable embarrassment for a while was the case of a woman who left a valuable dog with the butcher. The butcher, by the way, takes charge of dogs for the voyage. The trip was rough. The woman became seasick. Meanwhile the dog had four pups, three of which died. They were cast overboard. When the woman recovered she was told of the disposition of the dead pups. She refused to believe the story, declaring that the pups were still alive and that some steward was keeping them to sell in port, because anyone could be looking at the mother that they were very valuable dogs. I do not know if she ever believed the story, but I do know that when we transport canaries and a bird dies a wing is clipped and presented to the consignee as evidence. The same with foxes. The tail of the animal is cut off and submitted as absolute evidence of death.

Then there was a time when the captain performed marriages at sea, but even before the practice was abolished by the Shipping Board I had decided to give it up because they did not always seem "to take."

Sailors should confine their tying of knots to ropes. I think. My first marriage was performed in the English Channel en route from Cherbourg to Southampton. The parties concerned were on the staff of the League of Nations. They had to be American citizens, of course, to be married on an American ship. The formality is very much like that ashore except that the words "according to the laws of the sea" are used instead of the state in which the ceremony is taking place. Six months later the couple returned to the United States to get a divorce.

The life of the captain also has its humorous sides. I was making a routine inspection when I discovered the ship's bootblack industriously polishing shoes that were just outside of a stateroom door.

"You have a room to polish shoes in," I said. "Why don't you go below to do your work?"

"It's impossible, sir," he explained, "these shoes belong to a Scotchman in this cabin and he is holding the laces on the other side of the door." It was not right for me to stop the man in his work. That is part of service to passengers.

SPORTS
OF ALL SORTSYANKEES HAPPY;
RUTH & GEHRIG
FIRM IS INTACTWorld's Champions Look for Another League
Pennant in 1929

BY BRIAN BELL

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

St. Petersburg, Fla., Mar. 9.—(AP)—Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig are enjoying their usual robust health and the New York Yankees are ready to start another quest for baseball supremacy.

It matters little in the camp of the world champions that an untired third baseman will protect a corner of the infield, the throwing of the pivot man at second may lack snap and precision, and two pitchers are trying to regain their misplaced cunning. Ruth and Gehrig are in good health and spirits. The Yankees believe that when longer hits are made, Babe and Lou will make them. Mark Koenig has succeeded Joe Dugan at third base, with shortstop falling to Lyn Lary, sensational Pacific coast recruit. Lary promises to join the small class of players able to live up to advance notices and big price tags.

Lazzeri Recovers.

In the limited scope permitted by "Hug" Tony Lazzeri, who suffered from a lame arm last season, has thrown well enough although no occasion has appeared calling for him to "bear down" on his required arm. Leo Durocher, a great fielder in any league, and Gene Robertson, better as a hitter than a fielder, stand subject to call without notice. Lou Gehrig has a first base assistant in the person of the veteran, Leonie Burns.

The Yankees, always well fortified in the outfield, have now an even greater surplus of talent which may prove embarrassing when the time comes to clear the decks to a working basis. Ruth, Combs and Meusel, of course, will get first call and Durst and Paschal, able reserves, have been joined by Sam Byrd and Elias Funk good enough to qualify as understudies. Outen, the North Carolina state collegian, can hit.

The catching staff also presents a contest with Arndt Jorgens, an Oklahoma City recruit, fighting energetically for a place. Bengough, Dickey and Grabowski are wearers of service stripes.

Pitchers Look Better.

Herb Pennock and Wiley Moore, pitching casualties of 1928, look all right and feel all right, but the extent to which their ailing arms have been rejuvenated can be told only under fire.

Waite Hoyt and George Pipgras will take up just where they left off last year and Tom Zachary, a bulwark in the closing days of the campaign seems to grow younger with the passing of the years. Ed Wells, a left hander who has been a major leaguer before, has an excellent chance to be one again after a tour of duty in the southern association. Henry Johnson, Fred Heimach and Myles Thomas are back again as is Al Shealy who started with the Yanks and finished with St. Paul. Fay Thomas, the former Giant, is bidding for a place. If they start playing football the Californian cannot be kept out. Of the younger candidates Roy Sherid, Albright's home for major league representation, seems to have a slight advantage. He prepped at Mortreal with conspicuous success.

RAY BURGLAR ALARM

London.—An invisible foe to burglars, infra-red rays, is being experimented with here. The rays are invisible, and can be thrown across an entire room or across a doorway. When an object passes through the rays an electric circuit is broken, causing the ringing of alarms.

Old Face in New Uniform

The most important familiar person in a new uniform this season is Rogers Hornsby, shown here in the regalia of the Chicago Cubs. The fellow Cubs. Hornsby is with the Cubs this season, his fourth different outfit in four years. With Hornsby in their fold the Cubs are favorites to win the National League pennant this season.

Swatting Flies a la Gehrig

"Here's how!" If those aspiring and perspiring Yankee rookies want to play with world champions they have to play like world champions. And in this action photo from the New York Americans' training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., you see Lou Gehrig, batsman and fielder extraordinary, flies that go buzzing by. Left to right are Ed Berggren, Bill Christiansen, W. A. Outen, and Gehrig.

ILLINI FAVORED TO WIN BIG TEN
INDOOR MEETINGGo Into Finals at Iowa
Tonight Overwhelming Favorites

BY CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer
Iowa City, Ia., March 9.—(AP)—Illinois, eight times winner of the Western Conference indoor track and field championship, has its ninth title within its grasp. The Illini go into the finals of the Big Ten meet tonight an overwhelming favorite, with Iowa in the position of runner up.

The competition brings together a picked field of 261 athletes, one of the largest entries in the history of the event.

Illinois served notice of its superiority by qualifying 11 men in the trials last night, placing two men in the 60 yard dash, three in the 70 yard high hurdles, and another trio in the mile and half mile.

Iowa and Indiana each qualified six men, with Ohio State placing five and Michigan and Chicago four each. Wisconsin qualified three men, North-western and Minnesota two each and Purdue one.

Indications in the finals developed in the preliminaries when a new mark was set in the 60 yard dash and a trio of hurdles tied the Big Ten record in the 70 yard high hurdle event.

Timm Breaks Record

Judd Timm of Illinois clipped a tenth of a second off the record of the 60 yard dash when he won his qualifying heat in .062 seconds. This brilliant performance also equalled the American indoor record for the distance. Tonight Timm will match his stride with the seasoned veteran, George Simpson of Ohio State, former holder of the conference indoor record for the distance and Eddie Tolan, of the University of Michigan, sophomore Negro flash, holder of the national interscholastic record for the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Tolan, making his debut in Big Ten competition last night, won his trial heat by two yards over Burkhardt of Illinois, reaching off the distance in .063 seconds, which equaled the old meet record.

Crooks of Ohio State, Allison of Iowa and Hayden of Chicago each tied the record in winning their heats of the 70 yard high hurdles events. Each won in .088 seconds, tying the record made by Frank Cuhel, Iowa's Olympic star, in 1928.

George Baird, of Iowa, holder of the record in the 440 yard run, was out of competition because of a pulled tendon. Robert Carr, the Illinois high jumper and 1928 champion, and Joe Novak, also of Illinois, title holder in the mile were forced out by injuries.

Claims Championship
for Sharkey: Ignored

(Telegraph Special Service)

Chicago, Mar. 9.—Johnny Buckley in a wire to Paul Prehn, president of the National Boxing Association, claims the heavyweight title for Jack Sharkey. Basing his claim on the national poll of sports writers which rated Sharkey first, and the victory over Stribling, Buckley announces that Sharkey will defend his title against Jack Dempsey.

"We do not recognize Sharkey or anyone else as heavyweight champion," Prehn says. "Championships, the National Boxing Association feels, should not be won in the mouths of managers but contested for in the ring."

"An elimination is necessary before a champion can be determined. Sharkey's poor showing against Stribling makes his championship claim without particular strength."

WATCH YOUR HAT

Jacksonville, Fla.—There may have been one of those "Watch Your Hat" signs in the food dispensary, but Jim Massey, Jacksonville reporter, had other things to worry about. He was interviewing Josephus Daniels, ex-navy secretary, and had hung his hat on a convenient hook. Some one evidently took a fancy to the topper, for when Massey returned the hat was gone.

BIG TEN'S CAGE
SEASON TO END
THIS EVENINGChicago Will Attempt to Topple Badgers
from the Lead

Madison, Wis., March 9.—(AP)—The Big Ten basketball campaign ends tonight with Chicago attempting to topple Wisconsin from a tie for the championship with Michigan. Nothing but a one-sided victory for Wisconsin was anticipated, however. The Badgers overwhelmed the Maroons 33 to 21, on their home floor earlier in the season and unless Chicago has changed its style and sharpened its shooting eyes, Wisconsin should double its score tonight.

Victory for the Badgers would give them a tie for the title with Michigan the team that defeated them twice. An upset, which would be the most stunning of the entire season, would give Michigan undisputed possession of the title and shove Wisconsin down into a tie for second place with Purdue, which wound up its season Monday night with a record of nine victories and three defeats.

Tonight's game will furnish an interesting sidelight in the attempt of "Blue" Foster, Wisconsin forward, to win runner-up honors to "Stretch" Murphy of Purdue in individual scoring. He needs seven points to oust Branch McCracken of Indiana, who scored exactly 100 points. Van Heyde of Ohio State has scored 99, while Johnny How has collected 95.

Cubs Exhibit Their Fine Murderers Row

Avalon, Cataline Island, Cal., Mar. 3.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy's Cubs already have demonstrated that they have a "Murderers' Row" of their own for 1929.

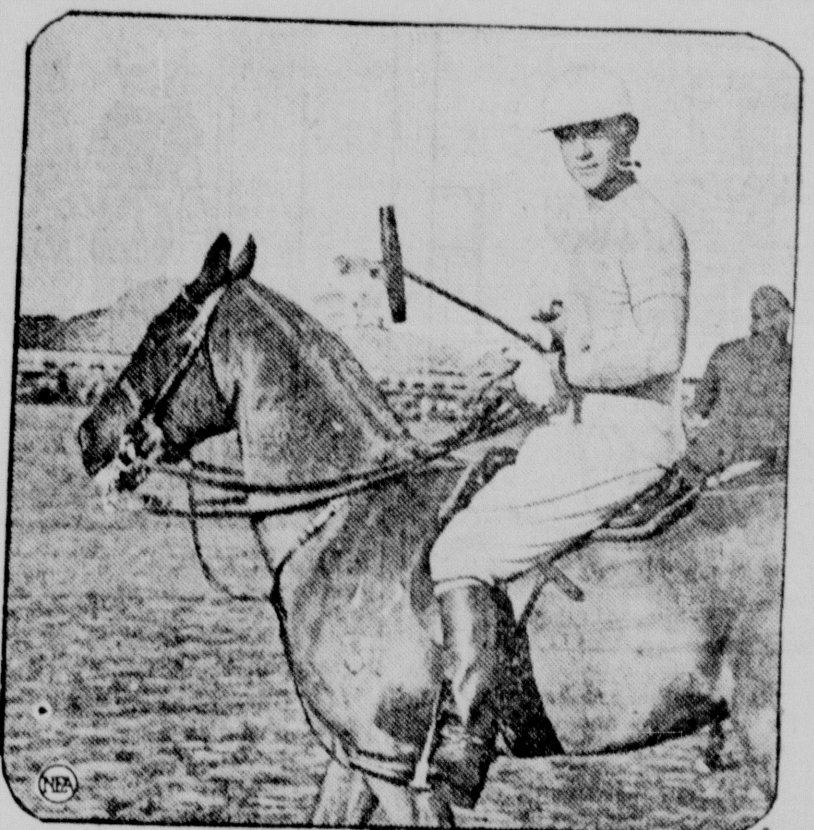

Eighteen hits rattled off Cub bats yesterday as they defeated Los Angeles, 11 to 6, in their first exhibition game. Rogers Hornsby got a home run and two doubles in five attempts, while Riggs Stephenson got five safeties. Clyde Beck, whose hitting has been worrying Manager McCarthy, came through with three hits.

Lautescher, Hooley and Horne, rookies, pitched for the Cubs and held the Angels' bats to nine hits. The Cubs were back for more conditioning here today.

SEEK GAMBLER FOR MURDER OF
"FATTY" WALSHAll Night Search by Miami Officers in Vain, They Say

Miami, Fla., March 8.—(AP)—An all night search failed to disclose any sign of Eddie Wilson, wanted for the murder of Thomas "Fatty" Walsh, while police believed he still was in hiding somewhere in the vicinity of Miami.

Suspicion centered on Wilson after police learned he had quarreled with Walsh shortly before the killing on Wednesday night. The two men, it was understood, had previously had a number of minor difficulties.

Wilson was said to have been proprietor of a gambling "layout" that occupied a fourteenth floor suite of a hotel.

The Walsh killing Wednesday night was the signal for the opening of a concerted drive on gambling within the county by Sheriff M. P. Lehman. A number of gambling halls

Farm Federation to Back Hoover's Plan

Chicago, March 8.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover was pledged 100 per cent cooperation by directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation today as news of the President's call for a special session of Congress April 15 to enact special farm legislation was laid before the directors' meeting.

Sam H. Thompson, president of the federation, said his organization felt responsibility for working out the program of farm relief rests with the national administration. "It is the President's task to work out the problem and the task of the federation to cooperate with him to the fullest possible extent."

Mr. Thompson reported on his conference with Mr. Hoover last week, prior to his inauguration, at which the entire agricultural situation was discussed, including Mr. Thompson said, the proposed procedure for securing proper relief legislation. Mr. Hoover was pleased to learn, the farm leader reported, of the attitude of the federation and gratified to know that the "vast army of organized farmers would be behind him with advice and assistance in working out the administration program.

CHILDS BEATEN IN BATTLE TO CONTROL CHAINFounder of Restaurant Chain is Beaten by
Wall Street

New York, March 8.—(AP)—The name "Childs" on a country-wide chain of restaurants was little more than a trademark today. William Childs, its founder, and his family were out of control of the company.

William Childs went down fighting, but was stopped at every turn by his opponents who voted proxy representing 60 per cent of the company's 441,000 shares of stock.

From the platform where he presided over the annual stockholder meeting yesterday as Chairman of the Board of Directors, Childs last conceded victory to the faction headed by William A. Barber, former Attorney General of South Carolina, and in a voice choked with emotion announced he was through.

"This company," he said, "is the child of my efforts. When you take this child away I am through. Do file it if you will but I shall never come back. I wonder what will happen to this thing that Wall Street wants. I want nothing to do with the sort of board that will come out of a deal like this. I am surprised we are turned down, but might makes right and nothing is so strong as money."

The Barber faction charged that Childs had brought about a drop in the earnings of the company by his policies which included minimizing meat on the menus.

HE'S THE ONLY ONE

The this one, if you can. A science-stricken motorist recently sent the following letter to Traffic Captain Irwin: "I was in Portland recently and, upon starting for home, I went several blocks without putting my lights on. I did not do so intentionally, nor did anyone say anything about it, but I thought I would write and find out if there is any fine for it. If there is, I wish you would let me know."

THE STORY OF THE HOUR—
"RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL"

Against a background as realistically New York as an airplane photograph of Manhattan Island, Huck Connor, Harold Judson and Stephen Armitage each fought for one of the three things that men have always fought for—Life, Love and Money.

Circumstances tossed these three widely different types together. Huck Connor, left above, was a desperate racketeer. Harold Judson, center, was the pampered, weak-willed son of the owner of the fashionable Judson Hotel. Stephen Armitage, right, was a young automobile salesman.

How Judson and Armitage fell victim to Huck the racketeer makes a thrilling story of New York life. As modern as today's newspaper. Meet these characters, and Pamela Judson and Mildred Lawrence in "Rich Girl—Poor Girl," Ruth Dewey Grove's newest serial story hit.

HER MODERNISTIC KITCHEN

And now it's the modernistic kitchen! It's not a matter of calling in the architect and builder, nor even of employing an interior decorator. As a matter of fact, this gesture of modernity is confined to a set of kitchen equipment which every woman can make herself, and at a negligible cost.

The set consists of a pair of curtains, dish towels, a trio of pot cloths, a set of refrigerator bags—one each for parsley, lettuce and celery—a broom cover, an apron and a dustcap. Each article is adorned with a smart, modernistic motif and all are made from transformed flour bags.

If you have the flour bags on hand from flour bought for home baking, and a generously filled scrap bag, the cost will be absolutely nil. If, on the other hand, you have to buy the bags, your baker will let you have them for a few cents apiece, and three one-fourth yard lengths of fast colored gingham are the only other expense. The bags are easily ripped, since they are chain stitched. Their stamping is removed by soaking it in kerosene or lard for a few hours and then washing out in warm water. Some women prefer using javelle water.

No patterns are needed except for the apron and dustcap, and nearly every woman has her favorite apron pattern. The style shown here is particularly good because it is ample and has, instead of tie-ends, a strap across the back which snaps in place.

The refrigerator bags are simple to make. The lettuce bag measures 10x13 inches, completed; the celery bag, 7x18 inches, and the parsley or radish bag, 7x10 inches.

A single bag is long enough to make a curtain for the average kitchen window. If the window is exceptionally high, a band of contrasting material may be put all around or a false hem added at the top for the heading and casing. The modernizing effect is added by applying the colored pieces in some such design as shown here. The color scheme should be carefully chosen. One most successful set which thousands of women have admired and many copied, had the design carried out in two shades of green, a warm yellow, and black. Another combination is red, black and yellow, still another is pale blue, orange and black. Decided contrasts are the most effective for this design.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

RUTH LESTER, secretary, found the body of her employer, "HAND-SOME HARRY" BORDEN, Monday morning, sprawled beneath the alfalfa window of his private office. She was shocked and called for help. The police arrived and found four Saturday afternoon. MANN, detective sergeant, questioned the following suspects: RITA, MRS. BORDEN, BORDEN's estranged wife and mother of his child; RITA, DUBOIS, night club dancer with whom BORDEN was infatuated; JACK McMANNA, BORDEN's narrow alias office in Chicago.

McManna's belief in JACK's guilt is strengthened by the testimony of the elevator boys, MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFLUGER, who says he heard Jack threaten BORDEN's life Saturday morning. The officers are sent out to bring BORDEN's car to the police station. JACK, BORDEN's discarded mistress, and JACK McMANNA, her bodyguard.

McManna questions BENNY SMITH, BORDEN's office boy; ASHE, his manservant; MINNIE CASIDY, BORDEN's sister, who cleans the BORDEN suite; and LETTY MILLER, who cleans JACK's office.

McManna shows BORDEN a new-made scar in the brick wall beside JACK's window, also a flattened bullet hole in the concrete seven feet below. He says BORDEN "stood in JACK's window" and "not yet arrested but shadowed by a detective, goes to BORDEN's apartment where he was waiting for the events of the day in an attempt to hit bits of the puzzle together. When BORDEN was shot, ASHE and MINNIE's testimony about the mysterious woman with the beautiful face, the "black widow," JACK blushes and starts violently.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV

"NOTHING'S the matter!" Jack Hayward denied, with peculiar emphasis. "What were you going to say about the woman with the contralto voice?"

"You started and blushed—and you're still blushing," Ruth accused him wonderingly, and a little jealously. "I'm sure my description reminded you of someone you know."

"What about this woman with the voice?" Jack evaded.

The girl stared at him, bewildered and hurt, then answered steadily, a little coldly: "You were present this morning when I told Mr. McManna about a telephone call for Mr. Borden at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. I was familiar with the voice calling then, for the woman had telephoned several times during the four months I worked for Mr. Borden. He always refused to talk with her, though she never gave me her name."

"Saturday morning Mr. Borden came to my room, and after I had hung up the receiver, and when I told him that the woman with the beautiful contralto voice had called, he said: 'That voice may sound beautiful to you, but believe me, I'd rather listen to a riveting machine, or words to that effect.'"

"Not enough to hang her on," Jack commented drily, still poking needlessly at the fire.

"Of course not, dear," Ruth answered reasonably, though her voice trembled slightly. "But the story Minnie Cassidy told definitely brings the woman with the contralto voice into the puzzle. While Minnie was cleaning in our office shortly after half past one Mr. Borden left his office for a minute or two, asking Minnie to stay until he returned, since he had no key and didn't want her to go away and leave the door unlocked for him. While he was gone the phone rang. Minnie answered, told the woman to hold the wire. When Mr. Borden returned, he asked her to describe the voice of the woman calling, and Minnie did so, saying the woman had a lovely, sweet voice, like an alto singer, as she puts it. At first Mr. Borden told her curtly to hang up the receiver, then considered a moment, and directed her to tell the woman to call again in 15 or 20 minutes."

"WELL," Jack said impatiently, as Ruth paused.

"The woman, so Minnie says, gave her this message for Mr. Borden: 'Tell Mr. Borden that if he is wise, he will talk to me when I call again.'"

Jack shrugged. "Not nearly so definite a threat as I made against the man." Then, as Ruth stared at him with wide, hurt blue eyes: "If you're thinking that the woman with the voice made her final telephone call over my phone, I'm afraid I can't see it. Fifteen or 20 minutes after Minnie's conversation with the lady of the voice, I was in my office myself."

"I hadn't reached that conclusion yet," Ruth said slowly, coldly. "But your reasoning strikes me as a little odd. The woman could not have known that Mr. Borden had a train to make, hence may have delayed a little until she reached the Starbridge Building. Jack! Look at me!" she commanded with sudden urgency. "You're probably the world's clumsiest deceiver. It's written all over your face that you know something about this woman. Is this any time to conceal that knowledge from me? It's for your sake, remember!"

Jack shrugged, then laughed ruefully. "I'll never be able to get away with anything with a wife like you! . . . And may I have a kiss to make up for all I'm going to suffer at your hands in the future? . . . Um! . . . Now, darling, imitate that voice for me as perfectly as you can. I know you're a good mimic. I've heard you take off Borden, Benny, old Minnie Cassidy, and poor, timid Letty Miller. Go to it, sweet!"

Ruth laughed, happy again, then she enunciated in a throaty contralto: "Thank you so much, my dear Mr. Hayward! You are too kind!" Then, triumphantly, in her own voice again: "There! You started and blushed again! You can't deny you've heard that voice before—or the one I imitated."

"You're right, of course," Jack admitted reluctantly. "I do know the woman—slightly. She came to my office about two months ago, to inquire about insurance."

"Just picked you out blindly?" Ruth asked skeptically. "Or had someone given her your name?"

"I didn't say, and of course I didn't ask," Jack answered, a little stiffly. "I asked her into my private office and gave her a lot of information about various types of policies—straight life, 20-year endowment, etc. I didn't think at the time, that she seemed particularly interested, though she had asked for the information—"

"I imagine," Ruth interrupted suddenly, "that she was more interested in the occupant of the office across the airshaft."

"You've hit it again, though I didn't think anything of it at the time," Jack admitted. "Before she left, with her hands full of insurance literature, she stepped to BORDEN's office, maybe at BORDEN's himself. I thought she was interested in the pigeons, which were chattering about—made some remark to her about them, I believe."

"What was she like—beside her voice?" Ruth asked eagerly.

"Tall and very slender, big, fine dark eyes—sad eyes," Jack answered so unhesitatingly that the other pang of jealousy shot through the girl's heart. "About 35, I imagine. A good deal of makeup, but a skillful, artistic job. Good clothes, but just a little shabby, an elegant sort of shabbiness."

"She evidently made a great impression on you," Ruth could not help remarking. "I suppose you remember her name, too?"

"You're delicious when you're angry or jealous," Jack laughed, and kissed the tips of her fingers. "She did make a deep impression on me, because I thought she had the most tragic face I'd ever seen. That's why I hesitated to say a word which might involve her in this nasty business. No man would want to add another bitter line to that tragic face. Her name was Martha Manning."

"Miss or Mrs.?" Ruth persisted.

"She didn't say, but I addressed her as Miss Manning until she made inquiries about a trust fund's being taken out of the insurance, if she took it out, in favor of her six-year-old son. Then I called her Mrs. Manning and she did not correct me."

Ruth considered, her eyes growing wider and wider. Then, slowly: "Miss Manning, Jack, and the boy was Harry BORDEN's illegitimate son. I feel absolutely sure of that. . . . What was her address?" she added suddenly.

"Some little hotel—let me think. . . . Oh, yes, the Acropolis Hotel. I wrote her, asking if she had heard up her mind as to the kind of insurance she wanted to take out, and she did not reply. She did come in again, however, and told me that it was quite useless for her to consider any kind of insurance on her life—that she had been to her own physician and he had told her she was in an advanced stage of tuberculosis. And again—she stood at my window, looking out. . . . I felt damned sorry for her," Jack added, in a low voice.

"Frank Ashe felt sorry for her, too," Ruth said slowly. And then she told him, briefly, the story that BORDEN's manservant had told Detective Sergeant McManna.

"Motives!" Jack commented, but without triumph. "Now as to opportunity. Let us suppose she came to the Starbridge Building Saturday afternoon, before calling BORDEN to the telephone as he had asked her to, through Minnie. Why come to my office to make the call, even if she did remember that it was directly opposite BORDEN's and that she could see his face, as she talked to him?"

"MAYBE she realized that you were interested in her, would go out of your way to do her a good turn. Perhaps she intended to appeal to you to help her plead her case with BORDEN," Ruth suggested, and slumped in a pathetic little heap. "I'm so ghastly tired I can't think."

"You're going to bed, darling," Jack commanded, contrition and compassion in his voice and eyes. "I could do with a little sleep myself, and it's a shame to keep my poor shadow standing out there in the cold so long. He'll be all the better for taking his dog for a walk on the leash. You're going to the scene of the crime tomorrow morning, I suppose?"

"Me?" Ruth laughed shakily. "Why, I'm going to take charge of the investigation—after I've done one errand—with my own shadow trailing me. . . . No, I won't tell you what I intend to do. Go along. I want to—pray, and then to sleep. Good night, my darling. I love you."

an appointment, told him she was in the building and would be right up, then armed herself with your gun, went to his office, was admitted because he was expecting her, found he was armed too, and shot him just as he was about to shoot her. BORDEN's bullet going wild—out of the window. How's that?"

"Fine," Jack smiled mirthlessly "except for one or two minor details. Why should she take the gun with which he had tried to kill her? Why close the window?"

"But Rita Dubois insists that the window was still open when she was there between two and two-thirty," Ruth pointed out.

"And Rita also insists that BORDEN was alive," Jack reminded her. "If Rita is telling the truth, our whole case against poor Martha Manning topples, unless we conclude that BORDEN told Minnie not to come until half-past two or even later—realizing, as he did, that she had already made him miss his train, and that he would have to deal with Rita, between train time—2:15 and 2:30. But if that's the case, where was Martha Manning after she concluded her telephone quarrel with BORDEN at 2:10, and until half-past two? In my office all that time? So far as I know, no one has told of seeing a stranger on the seventh floor all afternoon, and neither Otto Pfluger nor Micky Moran saw anything about bringing such a woman to the seventh floor."

"SHE could have walked up, of course—part of the way, at least," Ruth offered tentatively. "But—Letty went into your office for the second time to clean them—half-past two. I'm sure she would have seen anyone coming out of your office or in the corridor. But Jack, there's no getting around it: some woman, Martha Manning, or some other woman, was in BORDEN's office Saturday—besides Rita, Mrs. BORDEN, Minnie and myself, I mean, as McManna puts it, she left her calling card on the glass panel in the door between the private office and the outer office—three clear fingerprints."

"The only fingerprints on the glass panel, which the window-washer had cleaned late Friday afternoon

ANDREW MELLON REVEALED SON CABIN PIONEER

Father's Book Puts New Tone on Background of Financier

NEA Service
Pittsburgh—Andrew W. Mellon, the financed patriarch of the American banking world, now serving as secretary of the treasury under his third president, stands revealed as the son of a pioneer and a man with a log cabin background—whether he looks or not.

In 1885 the secretary's father, Judge Thomas Mellon, looked back over his 73 years of life and wrote an autobiography. The book was forgotten in the course of years; now, however, it has come to light again,
give some new facts about the origin and career of one of America's great men.

Judge Mellon was born Feb. 3, 1813,
in a farm in Lower Castleton, County Tyrone, Ireland. The family migrated to America in 1812, landing at altimore and piling its worldly goods to a creaking Conestoga wagon here to cross the Alleghenies.

Near Pittsburgh they settled in a two-room log cabin. There Thomas Mellon, at the age of 12, began his career in the typical American way—by piloting a plow over the uneven flats of a frontier farm. He carried a paper pamphlet of Shakespeare's plays in his pocket, reading from it while the horses rested at the end of a furrow.

Admired Poor Richard Benjamin Franklin, patron saint of the thrifty, had written an autobiography, and a copy of it came into young Mellon's hands. He read it, and got from it the idea that he, too, ought rise to something more dignified and luxurious than farming.

"Here was Franklin, poorer than myself, who by industry, thrift and ruggedness had become learned and rich and elevated to wealth and name," he wrote. "The maxims of Poor Richard suited my sentiments exactly. I read the book over and over and wondered if I might not do something along the same line by similar means."

So, by dint of careful saving and hard work, the young man managed to get away from the farm and attended what is now the University of Pittsburgh, where he studied law. In 1839 he hung out his shingle in Pittsburgh as an attorney, and made the beginning of the great business house of Mellon.

Andrew Mellon, according to the biographer, was born in 1855. This incidentally may settle the much-discussed problem of his exact age.
The 1920 edition of "Who's Who" gave his birth year as 1852; the last edition made it 1854, and the last edition made it 1855. If the father's book is accepted, the last date is correct, and the secretary is 74.

These are in the autobiography a good deal of interesting comment about the Mellon brothers, sons of the old judge.

The two elder brothers, Thomas and James, it appears, at one time wanted to become blacksmiths; and the father, instead of ordering them curtly to give up such an unworthy idea, and devote themselves to the business he had founded, encouraged them and even equipped a small blacksmith shop for them. A little later, however, they lost their enthusiasm for this calling, and the judge remarks that "I soon discovered they were out and out business men."

Not Strict With Them
Of Andrew Mellon and his brother, Richard B. Mellon, president of the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh,
the father wrote:

"I was not as strict with them as I was with their older brothers. Whatever might be the case with other children, it was evident that severity was not the better course with mine.
Any of them would listen cheerfully to reason and conform to its dictates."

Andrew was suited for the business of the bank, but Dick's prefer-she's figurin' on a business career, but if she's ence was for outdoor employment, and I feared lest the confinement and close attention to the banking business at so early an age might be injurious to Andrew's health."

And a little later comes this commentary note:

"Andrew manages my banking business with eminent ability and success. Dick is equally a model with his brothers in the management of business affairs."

The Mellons of today are known as conservatives—the ultra-conservatives, indeed, of the conservative Republican party. This, at least, they did not inherit from their father. The old judge was a liberal Republican, and although he detested politics he took an active part in the campaign of 1872 and helped in the unsuccessful effort to elect Horace Greeley president over U. S. Grant.

"In 1872 I took an active part in the Greeley campaign," he wrote.
"because the duplicity practiced on President Johnson by Grant while secretary of war, and the corrupt cabinet he gathered about him when Grant became president himself, and his remarkable capacity for accepting presents from office seekers, had disgusted me with Grant and his administration."

On the last pages of the autobiography are these words:
"For many years I have been rated
a millionaire and perhaps justly so.
But gratification or happiness does not increase proportionately with wealth. It is more difficult to keep wealth when you have it than to accumulate it."

followed by an infected pulp that terminates in an abscess, from which infection is either taken up by the blood stream and distributed by it over the entire body, or, if drained into the mouth, is swallowed and mixed with, to become a part of, the nourishment. It will be distributed throughout the entire system.

Consider also the standpoint of deformity. We know that these baby or first teeth are replaced in due time by permanent ones; but if lost too soon, or before the permanent ones are far enough developed to erupt, the spaces will close up, caused by under development of the bony tissue, due to the loss of nourishment which should be supplied by the blood and nerve tissue that are destroyed with the loss of that tooth.

The result will be that the permanent tooth will not have room to erupt where nature intended it should, and malformed jaw bones with a set of irregular, unsightly teeth will result.

Here are three simple rules that I would suggest be followed closely by parents who have the welfare of their children at heart:

1. Find out from an authority what they are and then feed your children good nourishing foods; especially ones that require lots of mastication, as exercise gives the stimulation that will cause the proper development of the jaw bones.

2. Clean the child's teeth regularly, until he is old enough to do it himself, and then see that he is properly schooled to keep it up.

3. Consult with your dentist at regular intervals so that he can remedy any decay before it may prove serious.

In conclusion, remember that neglect of the child's teeth means neglecting the gateway to his entire future.

Lenten Thought

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

Whether we call it Utopia, the Golden Age, the Kingdom of Heaven, or by whatever name, there never can be an ideal society without ideal men. There can be no Golden Age without golden character, no golden relationships in life without golden thoughts and actions of the people who make up daily life.

So it was that Jesus built the Kingdom of Heaven, not upon laws, or programs, or theories, but upon love and goodness. He said, "The Kingdom of God is within you." It has its sources and incentives in the souls of men, and the outward things of life are right or wrong according as the inner life purposes are pure or impure.

It has been well said, "You cannot make a palace out of mud bricks." Even Jesus did not attempt to do that. He built the Kingdom of Heaven by building into it ordinary men, but only as he turned the dross of their lives into gold.

The Golden Age, when it comes,
will not just happen, or come as a result of outward circumstances. It will come from redeemed humanity expressing the love and richness of a new life.

SCIENTISTS AND ARTISTS FOOLED BY MOUNTAINEERS

Output of "Relics" of Old Indian Days is Ended by Govt.

Louisville, Ky., March 8.—(AP)— Kentucky mountaineers, in a measure, always have interested scientists. Now the scientist will be called upon to testify in a federal court in Louisville whether or not famous mountains have been duped by just a plain Kentucky mountaineer's idea of "rare" Indian relics. Federal investigators say they have and here's the story of what they found:

Near Cumberland City live Mark
Hanna Guffey, W. M. "Wade" Bell and R. V. "Velt" Jones.

Cumberland City came to the attention of Indian relic collectors, antique hunters and scientists upon discovery of a vast wealth of prehistoric objects of great value. Many of the relics were of a strange variety and unknown to science.

From time of discovery until Uncle Sam took a hand there was a steady flow of rare pottery, objects of old Indian art and decorations into the hands of collectors, according to United States District Attorney
Thomas J. J. Spraks of Louisville.

Agents of the government uncovered Indian relics in the hills of Clinton county until they came upon a strange work shop—then attention was directed at Guffey, Bell and Jones.

The work shop was crude with but an old Ford car as chief implement and power plant. It, however, turned out wares so genuine in appearance that, just as federal agents say, they found places among the best and most authentic collections, with approval of many eminent gentlemen of science.

Guffey, Bell and Jones have been cited to come down to the city from their mountain workshop on charges of using the mails to defraud and to tell just what they can do with an old Ford car and a few Kentucky mountain limestone rocks.

Crazed War Veteran Killed Wife and Self

Chicago, March 8.—(AP)—Believed to have become suddenly insane, Anton Kozar, 32, shell shocked war veteran, beat his wife, Anna, 30, to death in their home at Hinsdale, a suburb, last night, and then killed himself by taking poison.

Anton, Jr., aged 5, saw his father grasp a flat iron and start beating his mother. He ran screaming from the house and attracted the attention of a neighbor, John Danek, who went to the Kozar's home and found the couple unconscious. Kozar died shortly afterward. His wife died this morning.

Kozar, after having been discharged from an Elgin hospital a year ago, went to Hinsdale and started a chicken farm.
